INDUSTRY'S WESTERN GOAL — FOURTH PORT ON PACIFIC

RICHMOND RECORD HERALD

A RICHMOND PAPER FOR RICHMOND PEOPLE

TODAY'S ODDITY

LONDON, June 14.—UP—The rationalization zone of industry is tending to exterminate the heavy, muscular or "navvy" type of British laborer, and consequently heavy food and beer will be less and less required, Delisle Burns told a conference of works directors of the London, Midland and Scottish railway.

GASOLINE WAR HITS RICHMOND

SLAYER OF PROHIBITION AGENT TAKEN

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Give some men a bit of authority — and then watch the size of their hat expand.

* * * *

But, of course it is just a certain type of men who do this — only those who take themselves too seriously.

* * * *

Perhaps the greatest law of living, and success, too, is: "don't kid yourself."

* * * *

In other words, when you feel that high and mighty air coming upon you; when your superiority complex has arrived at its greatest height—take a look at yourself in the mirror, and then forget it.

* * * *

It is only a conceited ass who thinks that he is high enough in his position that he may "look down upon the lower classes."

* * * *

Perhaps it is only luck—a "break"—that has put this person in the high place. And another "break" may cast him out of the temples into the gutter.

* * * *

And when a man who retains "the common touch" is down and out after having fallen from the high place, friends always aid him.

* * * *

But he who has maintained that superior air is never aided—but is scorned.

* * * *

Honest poverty is respected by everyone.

* * * *

But poverty that is masked by a lordly air is laughed at and scorned by everyone.

* * * *

If the person who kicked that homeless pooch at the Southern Pacific station Friday night will call around we will be glad to recommend him to several persons who will joyously thrash him.

* * * *

It would be a pleasure to do so.

* * * *

A homeless, wandering mongrel dog draws more real sympathy than any other animal.

* * * *

Perhaps it is the pleading look in his eyes — that wordless appeal — that brings a lump to the throat.

* * * *

Which all reminds us that if one were to ask one of the rising generation what he'd do if he had a million dollars, nine out of ten chances his answer would be:

* * * *

"I'd buy me a place where I could raise dawgs."

STORY TOLD POLICE BY SLAYER

ALTURAS, June 14.—UP—Rodney Selby, 35, Indian Springs service station proprietor, who allegedly shot and killed Albert Brown, federal agent, was being brought here tonight by Sheriff John Sharp of Modoc county.

Selby surrendered yesterday to Clint Fulcher, garage proprietor, at Lookout, 40 miles west of here.

He was worn out from the strain of dodging posses seeking him and was weak from hunger. Selby, according to Fulcher, staggered into his garage saying, "I'm the man they're looking for—send for the sheriff."

In Hiding

He told Fulcher he had been in hiding in the Modoc county badlands, near the Adan mountains, taking what refuge he could by day and traveling at night.

The sparse vegetation and lack of game forced him into a realization of the futility of endeavoring to elude the scores of the searchers indefinitely, he said.

Fulcher immediately got in touch with Sheriff Sharp, who came to Lookout and returned the prisoner to Alturas.

Story Told.

Selby's story, according to Sharp, was that Albert Brown, the agent, and his partner, Robert A. Davis, wounded by Selby, came to his service station and demanded drinks. Selby said he served them and that they then revealed their identity.

Then he said, he walked behind the counter to replace the bottle of liquor, when he saw Brown reaching for his gun.

He then picked up his rifle, and fired at the two prohibition agents, killing Brown and wounding Davis.

Sticks to Story

Selby stuck to his story that Brown fired first and that he had no intention of getting a gun until he saw the agent reach for his own.

The shooting occurred last Wednesday. Immediately after, Davis, although badly wounded, drove his dead companion to Alturas and sought medical aid for himself. Posses were organized and Indian woodsmen and dogs were added to the manhunt for Selby, who had taken his rifle, provisions and field glasses and set out for the badlands.

Selby's mother was held at Alturas as a material witness. She also maintained that her son had not fired until shot at.

Death Takes J. Cavalletti

Death last night claimed Joseph Cavalletti, 68, for 29 years a resident of the City of Richmond.

Since that time he lived with the Frank Valenti family, at 634 Second street.

Deceased was a veteran of the Italian army. He was unmarried. Surviving are two brothers and two sisters who reside in Savona, Italy.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 9:30 o'clock from the St. Mark's church with interment at St. Joseph's cemetery. Rosary will be said at eight o'clock Monday night.

HOUSE RIVER HARBOR BILL DEBATE WILL OPEN MONDAY

WASHINGTON, June 14.—UP—A weary senate will begin Monday to debate the $120,000,000 rivers and harbors bill, hoping to finish this and other necessary legislation in time to adjourn by the end of next week.

A serious controversy over the bill's provisions with relation to diversion of water from Lake Michigan, however, may slow up the measure to such an extent that adjournment will be delayed.

Senators from Great Lake states are prepared to wage a bitter war on the committee's recommendation that the war department be given control of water diversion from the Great Lakes for the Illinois waterway.

On their behalf, Senator Blaine, Republican, Wisconsin, has introduced an amendment which would prevent diversion, without specific authority from congress, of any more than 1500 cubic feet a second in addition to water pumpage for Chicago, now allowed.

The Blaine amendment is opposed by a dominant coalition of senators from the Mississippi valley and from eastern states.

Proponents of the Blaine amendment believe, however, they can convince the senate of its justice, and are determined the bill shall not pass without it, or something like it.

Other controversial features of the rivers and harbors bill as it came from the house have been ironed out.

The bill provides for a nappropriation of $312,000 for the work of maintaining the Richmond harbor.

June 24 the new officers of the lodge will initiate a class of candidates and a large attendance is anticipated.

Wilson told a delegation that no decision will be made by the board of trustees toward the selection of a municipal water supply until completion of the survey now being made by Andrew M. PRICE CUT TO SEVENTEEN CENTS

First indications of a gasoline war were seen in Richmond last night when a number of local vice stations slashed the retail price of gasoline to 17 cents a gallon.

It is expected that today and tomorrow independent stations in this city will follow the move and will slash their prices three cents a gallon.

The new "war" was started by a chain of service stations in the eastbay yesterday, when they cut their prices to 17 cents a gallon.

Officials Mum

Rival independent stations immediately retaliated, some of them cutting the price of gasoline to 16 cents a gallon.

The majority of San Francisco stations, however, steadfastly retained a price of 20 cents a gallon in the face of the cut.

Officials of the company selling the gasoline which was first marked down, refused to comment on the situation, but stated that any announcement would have to come from the home office in Los Angeles.

War Local

Dispatches from the south, however, quoted company heads as being unaware of the flurry, and declaring that any price war must be purely local and would undoubtedly be confined to the bay regions.

The present price cut is the first since last March, when an impending gasoline war simmered to a mere skirmish between rival stations.

Meanwhile, 19 defendants, including seven major gasoline companies, are scheduled to have federal trial dates set Monday in Federal court in San Francisco on charges of violation of anti-trust statutes in gasoline price fixing. Eleven independent stations and one individual make up the balance of the defendants.

U. S. WOMEN NET STARS BEATEN

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 14.—UP—Defeating American's two leading feminine stars—Helen Wills Moody and Helen Jacobs—in the doubles, Mrs. Phoebe Watson and Mrs. Kitty McKane Godfree captured the Wightman Cup for Great Britain today. The British team scored a victory of four matches out of seven.

The two Helens, after losing the first set, made a spirited bid for match by taking the second set but the British woman proved superior and won the third and last set, 6-4. The score for the match was 7-5, 1-6, 6-4.

When the final doubles match was played, the two teams were even, each having won three matches. The Americans, trailing at the end of play yesterday, came back today, Helen Jacobs defeating Joan Fry and Mrs. Moody winning from Mrs. Phoebe Watson in singles. Sarah Palfrey dropped the other singles contest to her British opponent, Phillis Mudford.

Mrs. Moody found some unexpected competition in her singles clash with Mrs. Watson, and won only a desperately fought first set. The American star finally triumphed, 7-5, 6-1. Miss Jacobs took but a short time to win from Miss Fry, 6-0, 6-3. Miss Palfrey lost by a score of 6-0 6-2, as Miss Mudford brought the team score all even.

Although during their sensational rise to tennis heights the two Helens of Berkeley, Calif., have played in countless tournaments together, they had never before been paired for a doubles match, and their contest with the Godfree-Watson team was therefore, of more than ordinary interest. They extended the British women in the first set and made their best showing of team work in the second, but the third and deciding set found the better team play of the British women too much for the Americans.

WIRELESS MAN SCORED IN CRASH

BOSTON, June 14.—UP— Evidence was presented before the federal court of inquiry today indicating that S O S messages could have been broadcast from the steamer Fairfax for at least half an hour after Tuesday evening's tragic collision with the tanker Pinthis.

Earlier in the hearings chief radio operator J. Wesley Gewekeh of Baltimore had testified that he was able to send distress signals only one or two minutes before his radio antenna became crippled.

Contradictory statements in this connection were made by today's star witness, Able Seaman Tom Farrington, of the Fairfax, a Miami, Fla., negro, who wore a Red Cross button in his lapel.

Mast Falls.

It was at least 20 minutes after the crash, while he was playing a hose on the fire streaming over the Fairfax's decks, that he saw the radio antenna fall he told government officials investigating the disaster, which took a toll of 47 lives.

At the time of the collision, he said, he was in the windlass room reading. He heard no alarm bells but when he felt the shock he ran up to the hurricane deck, stopped momentarily to look at the fire, and then hustled to his assigned fire station forward on the starboard side of the boat decn. There were several officers there who seemed to be waiting for something, he testified.

Pumps Started

He couldn't find anything to do on the boat deck, so, after putting on a life preserver he repaired to the hurricane deck. Everybody was excited he said, and somebody hollered for water, so he went down and started the pumps. This was 15 or 20 minutes after the collision, he said.

Although the pump was on Farrington testified, no water came through the hose for about 20 minutes.

Farrington said he saw no members of the crew taking life preservers from passengers, but on the other hand, he saw none of the seamen assisting passengers into life belts.

Testimony that none of the bodies recovered thus far from the flame-swept and sunken oil tanker Pinthis bore any burns and that in each case death was reported to have resulted from drowning, was presented.

No Sign of Burns.

Captain Fred Gower in charge of the Fall River plant of the Shell Eastern Petroleum Products Inc., which operated the Pinthis, said he personally had examined three bodies recovered and had seen no signs of burns. Previously it had been believed that all members of the Pinthis' crew had been burned to death.

John T. French, second assistant engineer, said that the main pumps of the Fairfax were not working until about 15 minutes after the collision, because—due to the acrid smoke— to enter the engine room. Both the fore and aft pumps were working within less time.

It was definitely announced at today's session that vice-president D. R. McNeill, of the Merchants and Miners line a passenger on board the Fairfax, would be called as a witness next Thursday.

Steamboat inspectors plan to question him regarding reports that he ordered the Fairfax radio operator to withhold details of the collision, when information was asked for by a shore station.

After Oakland had netted a run in the first and three in the third, the Sacramento team brought in four runs in the fourth to tie the game until the twelfth.

Iowa Hit By Record Flood

SIOUX CITY, Ia., June 14.—UP—Residents of northwestern Iowa began to return slowly to their homes tonight as flood waters which drove them away and caused damage estimated at $1,000,000 began to recede.

Farm crops, still under from 2 to 6 feet of water in some places along the banks of the Missouri river, were believed a total loss, while damage in Sioux City where basements still were flooded today, was estimated at more than $500,000.

Floods were caused by cloudbursts which were accompanied by hail storms.

BEAR EIGHT SECOND IN RACE

PRINCETON, N. J.—UP—Sliding over the waters of Lake Carnegie with a smooth rhythm and long sweeping stroke, the Navy varsity boat captured the triangular regatta here this afternoon by nosing out the University of California eight by less than a half length, with the Princeton shell three lengths behind.

Princeton's freshmen crew scored a close victory over the Navy plebes with a last minute sprint which pulled them a half length ahead of the Navy boat, with the California yearling boat five lengths behind.

The time of the winning Navy varsity boat was 9:28 2-5 for the mile and three-quarters course, the California boat finishing in 9:25 2-5 and the Princeton shell covering the distance in 9:39.

The Golden Bears got away to a fast start, with Navy second and Princeton third. Navy gradually closed the gap and pulled abreast at the halfway mark, with Princeton two lengths behind.

The last half of the race was a grueling contest between Navy and the Bears, with the former holding a slight advantage throughout.

Near the finish line California sprinted to within a few feet of the Navy boat, but the Midshipmen responded to the challenge and held the lead until the finish.

Princeton's freshmen sprinted after trailing Navy by 15 feet at the three quarters mark and took the lead as they crossed the finish line. The winners, undefeated this season, covered the mile and three quarters in 9:47 4-5.

Baron de Morpurgo, Italy's No 1 ranking singles player, duplicated the victory, defeating Jack Crawford of Australia, 5-7, 6-2, 6-4, 3-6 and 6-4.

The victories gave Italy a two-match-to-one lead over the Australians with one doubles and two singles matches remaining to be played.

Australia has been an overwhelming choice to defeat Italy and a favorite to qualify for the inter-zone finals against the United States, today's results providing a distinct upset. The winner of the current series will meet the winner of the Japan-Czechoslovakia series in the European finals.

THE "SWORDFISH" with a crew of five, will leave Chicago soon on a good will cruise around the world as representatives of the World's Fair. The party will be gone three years.

SEVEN CITIES FACE POLICE PROBLEMS

CHICAGO, June 14.—UP—Methods and personnel of law enforcement departments are under fire in seven of America's leading cities tonight.

Police forces, some of them struggling with unusual crime conditions, are being investigated in an effort to clean them up.

Although Chicago is at the head of its class, with more police scandal and a more threatening crime situation than its neighbors among the big cities a survey by the United Press revealed that Chicago is by no means all alone in bringing charges of corruption against its blue coats.

Boston Scandal

Boston is in the midst of a complex possible scandal, centering around Oliver B. Garrett, for several years an officer of the police liquor squad. Garrett has asked retirement on a pension. This was granted but a short time later charges were made that the pension was granted illegally. During an investigation in these charges, Attorney General Joseph Warner uncovered a number of facts which resulted in sensational charges.

It was learned that Garrett, whose salary was $2,100 a year, had deposited more than $122,000 in various banks. A hotel proprietor charged that he had paid Garrett money for protection against raids.

Mayor In Fight

In Detroit, a fight started between the police department and Mayor Charles Bowles who took office last January. Harold Emmons police commissioner, staged a series of raids on gambling while Bowles was absent from the city, and John E. Gillespie, commissioner of public works objected to Emmons' methods.

Gillespie told the mayor he would resign unless Emmons was discharged. Bowles dismissed Emmons over the protests of business and civic leaders. The mayor, in dismissing Emmons, asserted vice and crime flourished in Detroit. Civic leaders started a recall move against the mayor who replied only by dismissing John M. Bischoff, commissioner of building and safety engineering, giving no reason.

Chicago's police trouble grew out of conditions which were climaxed this week by the murder of Alfred 'Jake' Lingle, police reporter on the Chicago Tribune. The newspapers of the city united in demanding that the gangsters be run out of town. The Daily News and the Hearst newspapers led an attack on the police departaent, demanding that its heads clean up conditions or resign. The grand jury is investigating.

Albany Probe

Albany, N. Y., experienced an extensive inquiry after revelation of a gigantic lottery, the so-calico Albany Baseball Pool. Federal officials charged city police with guarding huge sums of money taken in the lottery.

Kansas City Mo., municipal affairs are disturbed by a police department deficit, which resulted in no pay for the police for several months and a city government deficit of over $400,000 which the public service institute declared inexcusable. Chief of Police John Miles resigned.

Murder of a prisoner in the Madison, Wis., jail by an insane cellmate caused a shakeup in the police department, which resulted in demotion of Chief Franklin Trostle. Ralph L. Erhart, who was booked as "demented" was placed in a cell with Godfrey Kugler Minneapolis, who had been arrested on an intoxication charge. Ten other cells in the jail were vacant.

Mental Tests Are Advocated

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 14.—UP—American courts and juries sentence the crime and not the prisoner, Mrs. Mabel Bassett, Oklahoma state charities and corrections commissioner and vice-president of the American Prison association believes.

Such procedure is wrong and constitutes one of the biggest law enforcement problems in the nation today, she said.

"Many persons who have a defective mentality are sentenced for the crime they committed without either the court or the jury considering the prisoner's condition," the commissioner said. "I believe every accused person should be examined by alienists."

Poverty and unemployment are named by the commissioner as the chief causes for crime.

Reveille Boy Winner Of 23rd American Derby

WASHINGTON PARK, June 14.—UP—Reveille Boy, whose owner paid out $500 of his last $800 as an entry fee, won the 22nd renewal of the American Derby today and took something over $49,700 for his owner, J. A. Best, former Memphis grocer.

Gallant Knight, one of the favorites, was second, three and a half lengths behind Reveille Boy. Xenofol, a maiden, was third.

Reveille Boy paid $116.03 for a $2 mutual ticket, the second highest price of American derby history. Best was understood to have held most of the winning tickets on his horse but he was too happy over his victory to confirm the report.

Reveille Boy is the only horse Best owns and he debated a long time whether to pay out $500 for an entry fee.

"I had $800 to my name," Best said. 'Finally I decided that the purse was worth risking $500. It took just two minutes four and 4-5ths seconds to make a rich man of me. I guess maybe it pays to take a chance once in a while.'

The WAY to WEALTH

The desire to make money quickly is natural but dangerous, when it leads away from safe investment to risky speculation. Many persons became aware of this during the recent break in the stock market. Even those who held good stocks realized the importance and the necessity of having a cash reserve in the bank to meet the unforeseen emergency.

The most important thing it taught was the futility of trying to get rich quick by speculation. The way to wealth is to put money in the bank regularly, where it earns interest and grows steadily, surely and safely.

Come in today. Our officers will be glad to advise with you regarding your financial problems.

CAROL, MATE RECONCILED, REPORT

BUCHAREST, Rumania, June 14—UP—A reconciliation between King Carol II and Princess Helene, appeared accomplished tonight, ending the domestic difficulties marking the monarch's return and ascension to the throne.

The reunion of the king and the princess he deserted during his exile with Mme. Magda Lupescu, was seen as anotner diplomatic victory for Dowager Queen Marie, whose influence has long been reckoned within the Balkans.

Despite the indisposition of the Princess Helene, which forced a cancellation of the family reunion dinner scheduled for last night, Queen Marie visited her son's former wife this afternoon, bent on making complete the return of Carol. Since the return of the Dowager Queen there has been increasing pressure on Helene to accept her former husband and immediately after Queen Marie's visit, it was said on high authority the reconciliation had been affected.

King Carol had already declared Helene's right to the title of Queen, and announced he considered her divorce nullified by the amendment of the law enforcing his own exile. His decision had been supported by Rumanian officials and the leaders of the Orthodox church visited him today to inform him that the church considered Helene's divorce void. The clergy said they would do their utmost to secure legal approval of the decision.

There was no indication here that the king would authorize the return to Bucharest of Mme. Lupescu, whom he deserted to regain his throne. Court circles were silent on reports from London that she was returning immediately, and another report from Paris that she would probably return later.

Although there was some talk of Carol's coronation being held in the autumn, the recent understanding that it would be delayed probably a year, was not revoked in official circles.

Premier Dr. Julius Maniu today caused a sensation in parliament when he revealed that the regency acted for the boy- king Michael, and had consented to the return of Carol. He said Carol would rigidly uphold the constitution and added that the king would not have been permitted to return without the express consent of parliament or the regency in accordance with the decree of January 14, 1926. The premier said the government would immediately start work on the economic problems with the expectation of having aid from foreign capital.

MME. LUPESCU WILL NOT RETURN

PARIS, June 14.— UP— Mme. Magda Lupescu whom King Carol of Rumania deserted to regain his throne, said today she had no intention of returning to Bucharest at present, although she indicated she might return later.

She talked by telephone with a friend in Paris this morning. She is at Vieznan, near Lucerne, and said she was slightly ill.

'I know that this is not a favorable moment for me to return she said. "The king is occupied with matters of state and has no time to see me or think about me."

No Inspection Tour Of Air Base

WASHINGTON, June 14.—UP—The house naval affairs committee has abandoned definitely all plans for a trip to California to inspect prospective sites for the navy's new $5,000,000 dirigible base Chairman Britten announced today. He said the committee may announce its final decision Monday.

At 11 o'clock Rev. Hudson will preach his first sermon as the regular pastor of the church, his theme being: 'In His Presence." Those who heard him during the two months he was with us last summer, will remember the many helpful sermons we enjoyed at that time, and will surely want to hear him again, especially when they know that his ministerial experience has been greatly enriched during his closing year at the seminary, by acceptably filling the pulpit in a neighboring church.
Under the direction of Mrs. W. H. Page, the choir will sing, "Come and Take Possession," Mrs. Mattie Baldwin, organist.
It is our earnest desire to make Rev. Hudson's first Sunday in his new charge a big success, and with this in mind, we urge every member and friend of the church to make a special effort to come out tomorrow.
Also to members of any other congregation where there will be no morning services, we extend a most hearty invitiation to come and join with us in helping to make this service the big success we wish it to be.

CAUGHT SHORT STARTS HERE TODAY

Marie Dressler and Polly Moran will be co-starred in Metro Goldwyn Mayer's all talking comedy, "Caught Short," which will open today at the Fox-California theater with a supporting cast including Anita Page, Charles Morton, Herbert Prior, T. Roy Barnes, Edward Dillon, Alice Moe, Gwen Lee, Lee Kohlmar and Greta Granstedt.

The picture was inspired by Eddie Cantor's book, "Caught Short," Willard Mack being responsible for dialogue and continuity and Chas. F. Riesner for the direction.

The comedy team will be seen as Washington Square (New York City) boarding house-keepers who achieve a rapid rise from poverty to wealth as a result of dabbling in the stock market, only to lose all when the Wall Street crash occurs. A romance between Miss Page and Morton has an important share in the plot.

The situations of this comedy are said to be uproariously funny, particularly in the early sequences of the picture in which Miss Dressler and Miss Moran are seen in their boarding house activities and again later when with the sudden acquisition of wealth they attempt to play the "grand ladies."

According to Riesner, whole on the whole, "Caught Short" is built on comic happenings, the picture is not devoid of pathetic moments in which Miss Dressler is said to repeat her brilliant performance of "Annie Christie," and Miss Moran also shows what she can do in a straight character role. The comedy gives the pair an opportunity for enacting another of their well-known drunken scenes, the occasion being consolation for their losses in the stock market.

"I'm Spainsh Now" a burlesque number written by Dave Snell and Ray Egan will be sung and danced by Miss Dressler in a boarding house party scene while a second number, 'Somebody," the work of Roy Turk and Fred Ahlert, will be sung by Charles Morton.

Also on the program is a Fox Movietone News and comedy entitled 'His Honor the Mayor."

MARY EATON IN TALKIE HERE

All the theatrical magnificence that the name Florenz Ziegfeld implies will be seen and heard at the Fox-California theater when "Glorifying the American Girl" opens there Tuesday next for a two day run.

In "Glorifying the American Girl" Ziegfeld truly out-Ziegfelds himself in spectacular production. The great maestro of magnificence has put every bit of his marvelous genius into the supervision of this glamorous masterpiece.

"Glorifying the American Girl" is a true picture of what has happened in the case of hundreds of beauties who have climbed to gilded fame through the guidance of the master glorifier of American womanhood.

Mary Eaton, famous for her stellar performances in many a Ziegfeld stage show, and more recently seen in "The Cocanuts" with the Four Marx Brothers, is the little girl from the tank town who makes good on Broadway. The picture is filled with lavish stage scenes and scintillating settings with beautiful girls in gorgeous dances and revues.

Also on the program is a Talkatoon comedy entitled "Wise Flies."

KEN MAYNARD IN WESTERN DRAMA

"Senor Americano," Ken Maynard's latest talking picture for Universal, which opened at the Richmond theater today is a production of most unusual interest and appeal.

Its action is laid in the co'orful days just preceding the admission of California to the Union. It deals largely with events in beautiful southern California, in the most romantic period of its history, when the traditions of old Spain still flourished.

Ken Maynard gives an ideal performance in the role of a young American cavalry officer who falls in love with a beautiful Spanish-Californian girl. There is all the riding and fighting for which his pictures are noted, and an appealing romance in addition.

Of special interest are the reproductions of scenes of old Californian life, including a rancho festival and an old-time riding contest.

Beautiful Kathryn Crawford makes a most appealing heroine. A graduate of the musical comedy stage, she is especially effective in the rendition of old Spanish love songs.

The strong supporting cast includes Gino Corrado, J. P. McGowan, Frank Yaconelli, Frank Beale and Maynard's famous trick horse, "Tarzan."

'Senor Americano" was directed by Harry J. Brown, who has produced a fast-moving, colorful picture, interesting at all times.

Six Killed In Mid-west Storm

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 14.—UP—The state of Minnesota tonight moved to protect the property of its storm stricken citizens, some of whom were made homeless by cyclonic winds which hop-skipped across southern Minnesota and central Wisconsin last night. Six persons were killed and the property and crop damage was estimated at $1,500,000.

The state executive council appropriated $2000 for immediate use in aiding the 275 residents of Randolph, Minn—the center of the damage done in this state.

Red Cross units took charge at Menominee, Wis., where five persosn were killed when a farm house collapsed while they were at dinner. Eau Claire, Austin, Redwing and St. Paul chapters were sending aid.

National Guardsmen from Northfield and Hastings, neighboring towns, to Randolph, were aided by several hundred volunteer workers.

The dead were:

William Drape, 40, section foreman on the Chicago and Great Western railroad, who was killed when he was struck by a flying flat car.

Charles Wolbert, 42, farmer, of Menominee.

Mrs. Charles Wolbert, 38, his wife.

St. Paul Wheatmen To Hold Meeting

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 14.—UP—Handling of the 1930 wheat crop will be outlined Monday at a quarterly meeting of the board of directors of the Farmers' National Grain corporation, M. W. Thatcher, general manager of the Farmers' Union Terminal association, said today, as he left for the Chicago sessions.

Establishment of an office of the Farmers' National Grain corporation may be announced after the meeting, Thatcher said. Branch offices already have been established in Spokane, Wash., and Ogden, Utah, to handle the 1930 crop.

Thatcher said the farmers' Union sub-terminal program of $500,000 already has been made public pending public approval by the Federal Farm board.

PAINFUL CORNS

Loosen—Lift Out

A little known Japanese herb, the discovery of an eminent German scientist (Dr. Stickel) instantly soothes the corn, callous or wart, then loosens it so that shortly you can lift it right out. This new discovery called "Corn Fly" excites the white blood corpuscles to action and granulates the corn at its root so that it drops out and leaves no trace of scar or soreness.

You will also find "Corn Fly Foot Bath Powder" a boon for sore, tired or perspiring feet.

"Corn Fly" for corns, 35c, "Corn Fly Foot Bath Powder" 25c, and "Corn Fly Bunion Remedy" 50c, (all three—$1.10 value—for $1.00), are sold under a positive money-back guarantee by Hi-Gene Co., Newark, N. J., or local druggist.

CLUBWOMEN ENROUTE HOME

DENVER, Colo., June 14.—UP—Delegates to the twentieth biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs are enroute to their homes tonight—pleased with their accomplishments of the past week.

It was a strenuous week for the representatives of 3,000,000 women—a week that saw them endorse prohibition peace, prison reform and clean motion pictures.

Perhaps the most important act of the federation was the almost unanimous approval given of rigid enforcement of the prohibition laws. A resolution stating there were "sinister" influences seeking to undermine the efficacy of the 18th Amendment and asking the federation to pledge its continued support of the act was adopted.

Endorse Pact.

The delegates also urged the speedy ratification by the senate of the London naval treaty and the Pan-American treaty of arbitration.

The delegates decided to "encourage all good citizens to cooperate with the officials responsible for prison administration and other constructive agencies in order to bring out a more earnest study of the causes of crime and its prevention and to develop adequate measures of reform."

Continued improvement of motion pictures by the suppression of certain objectionable scenes, with particular emphasis toward the problem of the child and the motion picture, likewise received the support of the federation.

Mrs. John F. Sippel, of Baltifore, Md., was re-elected president by the delegates, and will hold office until 1932, when the next convention of the federation will be held in Washington D. C.

Mrs. Sippel today announced the following appointments to the executive committee:

Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, of Brockton, Mass.; Mrs. Eugene B. Lawson, Tulsa, Okla.; Mrs. Henry G. Taylor, Bloomfield, Ia.; Mrs. Edward Hammett, Sheboygan Wis.; Mrs. William H. Purdy, of Mount Vernon, N. Y.; Mrs. A. E. Jones, Lisbon, N. D.; Mrs. Thos. O. Berry, Goldsboro, N. C.

The committee itself later will select another member to complete its organization. Mrs. Sadie Orr-Dunbar Portland, Ore., was the member thus chosen two years ago.

The executive committee voted to hold its next biennial conference in Phoenix, Arizona.

NEW TARIFF LAW EFFECTIVE AT MIDNIGHT LAST NIGHT

WASHINGTON, June 14.—UP—The Smoot-Hawley tariff bill with its increased duties on sugar, shoes, lumber, cement, bricks and nearly 2000 other products, has been passed by congress. The vote in the house, which was the last branch to act, was 222 to 153.

The new law will become effective at midnight following its signature by the president.

Legislative action on the measure was completed late today when the house adopted the final form of the conference report.

Two Votes

The senate finally approved the measure yesterday by the two vote margin of 44 to 42.

As soon as the massive document of 536 pages is formally enrolled Monday, it will be forwarded to the president. He is expected to sign it by the end of next week, though he has ten days in which to act.

In distinct contrast with the senate where some of the Republican leaders were publicly dubious about the efficacy of the measure, the house Republicans rushed it through its concluding stages, jubilantly cheering. They allowed only three hours debate.

Bill Defended

Democrats led by Representative John Garner of Texas, floor leader, predicted the increased duties of the measure would wreak havoc with their Republican opponents at the polls next November, but they were in a helpless minority, aligned against a cheerful majority, whose leaders proclaimed their bill would be a boon to suffering agriculture and industry.

Defending the bill, of which he is co-author, Chairman Willis C. Hawley of the House ways and means committee, lauded the general protective principle.

Hawley spoke of the measure as an agricultural bill, although he said its protection would be nation-wide, not sectional. The south, he said, received more protection than from any previous measure. Agriculture was generously treated he said.

Scientific Bill

"The bill is the most scientific ever drawn," he contended to his colleagues—therein differing from Senator Joseph R. Gundy of Pennsylvania, who declared the opposite in senate debate.

"I must condemn the propaganda in the press against the measure," Hawley said. "Such propaganda is fostered by interests which want foreign goods to get into this country."

The Oregonian denied the argument of the Democrats that the bill would cost the farmer five to ten times as much in increased duties on products he buys as he gets on products he sells. The average farmer, said Hawley, will get more than twice as much for his products as he will pay on the products he buys. When his figures were questioned he said they came from the department of agriculture.

"Double Crossed"

In reply, Representative Garner of Texas, charged Hawley with "double-crossing" his colleagues on the lumber schedule, because he failed to get the tariff on shingles. The Texan said that whenever a vote came before the House to be voted upon, the House fixed the lowest possible duty. The House and senate conferees, he said always agreed on the highest possible duty.

The tariff commission also was denounced by Garner for issuing statistics favorable to the bill.

"They have been acting as the agents for Republican propaganda when they should be non-partisan" he asserted.

Bill Fought

Garner relinquished the floor with the admission he could not change any further votes by debate.

The bill was bitterly assailed by many Democrats, including O'Connor and Black, New York, and Crisp, Georgia. A number of Republicans defended it.

The bill is the highest tariff law ever proposed in the United Staaes. Its sponsors say it will raise existing duties generally about six percent, while its opponents contend the actual figure is nearer 20 percent.

Tolls Large

In dollars, advocates of the measure deduce it will add $107,000,000 to the tariff duties and make the total around $630,000,000 on the basis of imports in 1928. Democrats assert the most of the measure will ultimately be a billion dollars when the increased cost of domestic products are considered. They call the measure "the Grundy billion dollar tariff bill."

The Cuban sugar duty is boosted from 1.75 cents a pound to 2 cents; shoes were taken from the free list and given a duty of 20 percent, the related hides duty being fixed at 10 percent.

Lumber, cement and bricks also were removed from the free list and subjected to the following duties: Cement 5 cents a 100 pounds; bricks $1.25 a 1000; soft lumber $1 a 1000 feet.

Large Increase

The agricultural schedule carries the greatest percentage of increases. The measure was originally designed to benefit the farmer and little protest was offered, except by eastern congressmen, to the enlargement of tariffs on farm products.

Some of the most important schedules affecting agriculture are, butter, now 8 cents a pound, would be 14 cents; cattle, now 1 1-2 and 2 cents a pound, would be 2 1-2 and 3 cents; wool, now 31 cents, would be 34 cents; hides now free, would be 10 percent.

Set Rates

The administrative changes of the measure are but little changed from the existing law. Nearly all of the tariff commission reforms advocated or adopted in the senate have been eliminated in the final draft.

The tariff commission will sit as now with three Republican and three Democratic members, instead of reporting the differences in cost of production to the president, it will be empowered to recommend to him rate changes within 50 percent of existing duties. The president will be required to accept or veto this rate. He can not himself fix a rate.

The debenture plan of farm relief, thrice voted by the senate, also has been eliminated.

New Rates

Arrangements already are being made by customs officials for speedy proclamation of the new law. Drafts of the new rates have been sent to customs inspectors who will be required to collect the new duties as soon as the law is effective.

JAPAN HAS RACKETEERS

OSAKA, Japan, June 14.—UP—The recent attack on a prominent actress, who was painfully slashed by three men armed with short Japanese swords, brought to light the existence of a gang of ruffians in Osaka, whose activities were akin to the 'racketeers" of America.

The actress Miss Mineko Murata, was returning to her hotel from the theatre in a rikisha, when she was attacked in the center of the Osaka theater district, the three men overturning the vehicle, and cutting her about the legs with their swords. police later arrested one of the assailants, who confessed that he was a member of a gang of young men which had been terrorizing the theatre district for several months. The gang, it was learned, was blackmailing persons prominent in the theatrical profession, and "beating up" those who refused to pay. Incidentally the gangsters could be hired by anyone desirous of securing revenge.

Although the attack on Miss Murata was never fully explained, it was rumored that she had been assaulted at the instigation of a jealous suitor, whose advances she had rejected.

Police were able to break up the gang and arrest its leader, who is now awaiting trial.

Lake Sailors Save Money

BUFFALO, June 14.—UP— The expression "to spend money like a drunken sailor" is becoming obsolete in Great Lakes ports.

The men who sail America's inland seas have gone thrifty, according to Albert Zimmer, of the Lake Carriers association, in charge of Buffalo headquarters.

The association conducted a wage saving contest, encouraging the sailors to put away their summer wages against the long winter of idleness and they are doing it.

Crews on each of the 29 steamers of the Interlake Steamship company last season had savings of $10,000 while six of the crews had in excess of $20,000.

'I believe the habit is growing and would not be surprised if this were a banner season for savings," Zimmer said.

WOMAN WHO TOOK CARE OF SOLDIER'S DOG HONORED

PARIS, June 14.—UP—As a reward for the years she spent caring for an American doughboy's dog in Paris, Madam Lebrun, who sold newspapers on the banks of the Seine, sleeps today in peace in a private cemetery instead of a pauper's grave.

Madam Lebrun 'adopted' Paddy, a mongrel, which an American soldier entrusted to her when he set off 12 years ago to return to his homeland. Paddy sat beside his new owner until she died of pneumonia in the charity hospital. They were about to bury her as a pauper when Ned Alsop, an American in Paris, who formerly resided in Pittsburgh and Washington, stepped in and paid the old woman's funeral expenses.

"My wife and I knew Paddy for years," Alsop said. "He used to sit with the old news woman outside the Hotel Palais d'Orssay. Every day my wife used to send him food. He was a great friend of ours because he realized, or seemed to realize, that we were Americans and talked English, and so reminded him of his master.

After his soldier-master bade him farewell, Paddy whined and pined and appeared inconsolable. For one thing, he could not understand French. Whenever his new owner said to him, "Viens ici," he simply yawned. How was he to know that meant in plain English, "come here?" Twelve years he waited, but his master never came. Instead, however, a gracious American woman passed one day, stopped and spoke to him. Paddy pricked up his ears at the sound of English and responded to everything the lady said.

The lady was Mrs. Alsop, daughter of Justice McKenna, formerly of the United States Supreme court, who had just came to Paris to join her husband. She learned the dog's story and every day after that, if she could not go to him herself, she sent a hot meal each evening for him.

Then Paddy's new owner died. She caught a chill while nursing the American doughboy's dog, which had grown old and enfeebled Madam Lebrun refused to go to a hospital and be parted from the faithful animal entrusted to her.

As the authorities were about to bury her in a nameless grave, Mr. and Mrs. Alsop intervened and arranged for a burial in a proper cemetery. Mrs. Alsop looked after Paddy until he, too, had to be put to rest. Now the affectionate mongrel sleeps in a little grave in a field not a stone's throw from the grave of the old woman who loved and tended him.

Anniversary Of Battle Of Piave Observed Today

ROME, June 14—UP—The twelfth anniversary of the battle of the Piave which was the prelude to the Austrian downfall in the war, and after Vittorio Veneto, the most important encounter on the Italian front, will bc celebrated by the army tomorrow.

The executive of the War Veteran's association and the executive of the War Cripples' association will visit the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Piazza Venezia, and lay commemorative wreaths.

The artillery regiments which took such an active part in smashing the Austrian offensive that began on June 15, 1918, and ended in the fatal retreat of June 23 will be addressed in their barracks squares by their commanding officers, who will recall the heroism of the soldiers that secured victory.

The death of Major Rrancesco Baracca, ace of the Italian aviation during the war, who was killed during the fighting on the Piave, will be commemorated by the Air Force tomorrow.

Presidential Ship Bears Much Coffee

NEW YORK, June 14.—UP—Apropos of Brazil's biggest industry, coffee production, the ship bearing President-elect Julio Prestes, of Brazil, to the United States, also brought enough coffee to brew 150,000,000 cups of this beverage. The president elect arrived here on the Almirante Jaceguay for a tour of the United States to repay President Hoover's visit to the South American nation.

Aboard the Almirante Jaceguay was a cargo of 5,000,000 pounds of coffee. Brazil at present exports about 65 per cent of the world's coffee supply. The United States incidentally, uses half of all the coffee consumed in the world.

The pace-setters

KEEPING-UP-WITH-THE-JONESES is no mere vagary of the cartooner. It is an actual condition in every city, town, village and hamlet of this great country.

There is a Jones in every locality to set the pace. But the average Jones is not a rich man — far from it. He has a good job, he dresses well, he is a good talker and splendid company. Jones is always the gentleman, welcomed at business conventions, public dinners and social gatherings alike. Mrs. Jones is envied as a successful hostess. Every woman in her set, and out of it, seeks bids to her bridge parties and other social functions. Their home is cozy, tastefully furnished and provided with the most modern conveniences.

"How do they do it?" ask the neighbors. "We have as much money as they. Socially we are their equals. But without seeming to try, without putting on any "dog," the Joneses set the pace just the same. Thev have learned from reading advertisements how to have many desirable things at little cost. They keep up to date on almost everything — just reading advertisements.

Keeping-up-with-the-Joneses is a comparatively easy matter — other things being equal. Read the advertisements regularly. Study them. Remember what you learn. Then, when you are in the market for anything, you will know, just as they do, what kind to buy. Soon you'll find yourself saving money, yet having more than you ever had. You'll find folks wondering how YOU do it. Oh yes! It's fairly easy if you make the most of your opportunities.

Advertsements are opportunities . . . study them to your own advantage.

THE WOMAN OF IT

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

Summertime Is Neighbor-Time for Women

ALMOST every woman instinctively likes to have a good neighbor and wants to be one. For many, nowadays, these are suppressed desires during the winters spent in apartment house or suburb. About this winter atmosphere there's something psychologically as well as physically chilly, nor do closed doors and weather-proofed windows lend themselves to the nuances of neighboring. But now, "the winter is past, the spring is over and gone," the time of being neighbors has come, and the social soul of femininity rejoices. Neighboring is one of the nicest of summer sports, from June to October, and almost any woman can take it up.

MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL

How neighborly hot days make even that traditional temple of mutual avoidance, the New York apartment house, was illustrated perfectly in the play, "Street Scene." You may remember how the pillow in the open window, the brownstone steps, the sidewalk, served as a nucleus for the neighborly propensities of all the families in the house. All over town, these warm June days, women in such surroundings are becoming better neighbors to one another.

For women in the suburbs, and in the summer tent and bungalow colonies already springing up and opening up, the seasonal sport of liking—if not loving—your neighbor is even easier. Thanks to the thermometer, we no longer have to huddle in houses; to put on wraps, climb steps and ring a bell if we want to call—or to borrow. We can sit on the porch, or work in the garden—and see or show at a glance whether any of us are "at home." We can "sing out" across the lawn, smile and wave a friendly hand from porch to porch. And we have so much more to discuss, so much more opportunity for discussion, than during the winter bridge-table round.

WHAT woman, for instance, isn't bubbling over with the fun of putting her home in summer clothes—and keen, as a consequence, to display all her new tricks to her women neighbors? Over three new electric refrigerators, proudly exhibited to us during one week, have we gloated almost as gleefully as the delighted owners. (One of them, bless her, kept us supplied with ice-cubes until the beach iceman came back on the job!)

Since painting—the furniture, the walls, even the tea-canister—became the favorite indoor sport of woman, neighbors have had a new duty and pleasure—the admiration of domestic art. Creamy bungalow walls with mouldings of robin's-egg blue, a shabby wicker arm-chair made resplendent by leaf-brown enamel picked out in orange and black, a kitchen freshly painted in sage-green—as a neighbor, we have passed enthusiastically on all these.

Our women neighbors have been good enough to share in our own small artistic triumphs. The thing of which we're proudest is our rain-proof piazza. With curling blue water just below it, we don't want awnings or other protective screens to interfere with the beach silhouette. So the green cushion in the green wicker arm-chair is rubberized, the back of the rocker and of the Gloucester hammock are covered with rubberized chintz splashed over with orange poppies, the hammock pillows are of leatherette, the small green table is well varnished and we have even painted the canvas in the steamer chairs a deep orange. One sweep of the arm carries the light kapok hammock mattress and its orange-patterned Indian blanket to safety—for the rest, let the rain rain!

SUMMER neighboring isn't just a mutual admiration society, though that is a pleasant part of the whole. But helpful give-and-take comes so naturally to neighborly women.

"Can't I get you something at the store?" everybody is always asking everybody else in the seven bungalows on Arcadia Walk.

"I'm going down after oil—shan't I put your oil-cans in the cart?" a pleasant woman inquires.

"I shall be at home every day this week, so, if you want to go to town, give me your spare key and let me tell the iceman to fill your refrigerator," another volunteers.

Because the nearest express station is miles away and we are minus a car, one of our kindest woman neighbors had the man at her favorite filling station bring our trunks to the beach for an infinitesimal sum. Because our orange-hued piazza lacked the final touch, another charming, friendly woman supplied it in the form of a gorgeous orange-and-crimson flower-pot, matching the Czecho-Slovakian pottery which was a fourteenth wedding anniversary gift from our husband.

Without sentimentality, without formality, without officiousness, utterly without malice, innumerable women in such communities are proving just how what good neighbors they can be—and what good friends. It's the woman of it.

SCHOOLMARM

When I was but a little boy
And went to public school,
I had a teacher there, who tried
To make me live by rule.

"Don't this, don't that, don't these or those,"
She'd say, and sweet I'd be—
She seemed a goddess to me then,
Just made to order me.

And now that I have grown a bit,
I have a teacher too,
Who tries to regulate my life
And tell me what to do.

"Don't this, don't that, don't these or those,"
She says. I make no sound,
But with a kiss I silence her.
(They're human, too, I've found.)

All Undergraduate Polls Go One Way

A woman's notion of the apex of the obvious is the reiterated reassurance, by college presidents, that campus drinking is reduced. What else could the presidents say, without courting the critical comeback, "Then why don't you reduce it?" But ask the students themselves for an opinion of Prohibition!

NailsChangeColor With Gowns

"COLORFUL the tips of modern fingers" . . . Fashion has decreed . . . and how deeply she has gone in for it is hinted by the headline which announces the three red shades chosen by Paris to humor her latest whim.

Lovely hands fluttering in and out of to-day's draperies are no longer pale—or even au naturel—but tipped with brilliance, accented with the red-red of a lover's roses . . . the coral of a gypsy's beads . . . the cardinal of a songbird. Or, in other words, just as they characterize modern costumes . . . romance, mystery, song . . . plus a delicious fragrance . . . signify up-to-dateness in the manicure.

Long, long ago we were conquered by the vogue for more obvious make-up; came to realize we were all better for a bit of powder, a touch of rouge skilfully applied. Nail tintings are but a step further in that direction.

And as the tone of the makeup varies with the time of day, the costume and occasion, so do the accented fingertips. On days when you feel particularly stunning in a frock that welcomes bright red in accessories . . . call upon cardinal to make fashionable your fingers.

While for heavier occasions and more tailored effects let garnet nails furnish a trim, efficient note as sophisticated as it is smart . . . and very latest.

When evening comes and lights are low . . . your gown a pastel symphony . . . the gentle touch of coral will give a most becoming blush to graceful gestures.

Rumor also has it that rings will match the chic polishes . . . the rich pigeon-blood red of the ruby for cardinal fingers; garnet or coral according to your second or third choice.

Verily the age is color conscious . . . discriminating about it. And where next the rainbow will reach is indeed a question.

A DISH A DAY

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

The first warm days present many menu problems to the housewife, for she wants to reduce the amount of meat and heavy foods in the diet, and yet she does not want her meals to lack variety. Noodles, spaghetti, baked beans—those old standbys among meat substitutes during the winter, are too starchy for warm weather and the family will tire of salmon, crab meat and eggs if they appear on the table too frequently.

Faced with this situation, the housewife should remember that flagging appetites often respond to crisp, salty food. And there is a tangy flavor to codfish that is always tempting.

Codfish balls, made in the time-honored manner are a little heavy for summer, but here is a recipe for codfish puffs that makes an ideal summer luncheon dish:

CODFISH PUFFS

½ pound salt cod
4 eggs
1 cup fluffy mashed potato
¼ teaspoon white pepper.

Wash the fish thoroughly, cover with water and bring slowly to boiling point. Cook from ten to fifteen minutes, or until tender. Drain and shred the fish with two forks, worked scissor fashion. Beat the egg yolks and add them to mashed potato, beating until light. Add pepper and shredded fish.

Beat the egg whites stiff and fold them into the potato and fish mixture. Melt a little butter, or heat a tablespoonful of olive oil in a skillet, and drop the fish mixture in by spoonsful. Cook over a low fire until they puff up, then turn carefully and cook on the other side. Brown slightly and serve hot.

SILK SUIT WITH PLEATED COLLAR AND PEPLUM

A MARQUISETTE TOP DISTINGUISHES A DRESS OF FLAT CREPE

AN EMBROIDERED BLOUSE WITH A PLEATED SKIRT OF CREPE DE CHINE

SUMMER is just one change after another when it comes to dressing anyway. This for morning, that for afternoon, change again for active sports, something else for cocktails and dinner. It keeps a poor girl busy wondering what she will "put on." And it keeps her busy, too, when she is a socially inclined somebody, seeing that her wardrobe is stocked with enough frocks to keep up their end of the game.

Did you ever see anything fade away in quite so thin-air a manner as the average dress for afternoon? It's such a wispy thing usually and absolutely puts it up to you to have aplenty of them.

If you are one of those who thrill at all to this feminine trend which clothes have taken, you will go so far as to manufacture things to do in the afternoon. For the country club, for tea and bridge, for luncheon these dresses and suits that are just a step dressier than spectator sports things are quite the most ravishing of the age. They have "touches" of hand work, applications of trimming, developments of creative imagination that would never, never be allowed on dresses worn earlier in the day.

There are the little dresses of flat crepe with their fitted yokes made of marquisettes. They are fascinating and very new. On the yokes are applied ornaments of cut-out applique most delicately hand worked. Then, on one of them there is just a shoulder strap band over the masquisettes, making it tailored enough for those that like that sort of thing and still distinctly a dress for afternoon wear. The yokes in these dresses are sometimes done in net, but the marquisette has a much more authentic and elegant look about it.

The Sleeveless Style

OF course it goes without saying that these dresses are sleeveless—that's almost a "must" with the summer styles, and a mightily appealing one it is too. The coats make up for any chilliness, but we'll come to those later.

Some sleeveless dresses have little capes that fit snugly about the shoulders and end at the elbow. Often they are detachable and, as you can detect at once, they are wonderful to wear to the club for an afternoon party when you are expecting to stay on to dine and dance informally. Your cape can then be left with your gloves and hat in the dressing room and you feel, presto change-o, as though you were wearing quite another costume.

French hand-made dresses in two-piece designs grow just sweeter and sweeter. Dresses with scallops and jagged points are good, and both of these varieties are particularly nice if you are wearing white—one with a scalloped cape, for instance, with a big velvet bow in front to give that bit of color which you may need.

Wider Brimmed Hats

WIDER brimmed hats go with these afternoon frocks—not too wide; remember that warning. Don't let them get floppy and unmanageable and out of all sense of proportion, and keep them untrimmed as far as possible. Just a simple band and bow is safest, for flowers and trimming skate off too easily into the ranks of the dowdy instead of remaining enviably tagged "smartly feminine."

Coats are sweet accents as well as extra warmth. You really need an afternoon coat. I like to think that these soft, new rabbit's wool and angora coats or their contemporaries are the modern survivals of the shawl, the scarf and all those drippy wraps that women always have needed, goodness knows, and that have always made them look so dragged about.

Consider the angora coat—short if you are thin, longer and lined with crepe de chine if you are—well, we won't speak the word. There are pinkey tans and bluey grays and other side issues of neutral colorings for the woman who can have but one and knows enough to keep that neutral so that it will chime in with everything. For the more fortunate you can have everything you want to go with every dress—there are yellows and corals and greens, and never forget the lavenders, too wonderful to behold.

Thumbs down on the little flannel coats and suede jackets for afternoon. But white and very pale neutral colored polo coats—yes! They go on into the later hours of the day quite as effectively as they begin.

The longer coats—you know about them, basket weaves and pastels, caped or plain. They are uniformly good. Then we have another surprise, which can be a pitfall too, in the embroidered coat—an all-over embroidery. (Dresses, too, on this idea—two-piece models with embroidered uppers and pleated lowers.)

But this is the woe of embroidery. It is "copied down," as they tell us in the trade, meaning that the lower priced shops have it among their best sellers. Therefore, if you haven't already laid in your store of embroidery go easily and do it discreetly—embroidered coat over a plain dress—plain coat over an embroidered dress—never two layers of embroidery together.

DON'T

LITTLE VIOLET had received a lovely new sweater. "Mother, what mustn't I do in this sweater?" she asked. It was easily seen that Violet belonged to that large family of children who live under the constant shadow of "Don'ts." Many of us have heard the story of the little one, who, when asked her name on her first day in school, promptly answered, "Mary Don't."

Is it necessary to constantly bombard our youngsters with "Don'ts"? There is no doubt that many of them do manage to get into a great deal of mischief, but can we not obviate this, to a great extent, by using a little forethought and supplying them with plenty of harmless occupations to keep them busy? Let us "do" them, instead of don'ting. In other words, let us suggest things for them to do. Then also, if we give Marjorie a pencil, let us be sure she has paper to use it on; and likewise, if Dick has a hammer, he must have plenty of wood. Instead of constantly admonishing Susan not to tear her book, why not take a little time to teach her how to handle books carefully? If we keep the young ones busy, if we substitute harmless activities for inadvisable ones, and if we teach them how to handle things, instead of prohibiting their use, I think we shall be able to do with a minimum of don'ts.

The child who is constantly "don'ted," either learns to protect himself by not even hearing our words, or he becomes resentful and rebellious. He may get so that he answers with a "No," or "I won't," even before he has really heard our command. He feels that there is war between us and consequently he uses every ounce of his strength to outwit us. On the other hand, the child who is prohibited only when it is absolutely necessary, senses that his parents are just and fair, and is most reasonable in complying. Sometimes, too, when a youngster has been constantly thwarted, day after day, and year after year, he becomes discouraged and eventually loses all initiative.

Let us play a game with ourselves and keep a record for a morning or two, of the don'ts we use. We shall be astonished! If we keep a close watch on ourselves, we shall find we do not need to use nearly as many prohibitions, and that most of the time a "do" will serve us much better!

Washing Kitchen Walls

AFTER a prolonged session of closed windows during the winter months the kitchen walls are likely to be affected by the smoke, steam and greasy particles that rise from food while it is being cooked.

Unless repainting is necessary, washing is a good way to freshen the painted wall surfaces. A satisfactory preparation is made by mixing a quart of hot soapy water with a quart of boiling water in which two ounces of glue have been dissolved. The addition of a little flour, ammonia and sal soda will make the solution thicker and stronger.

Apply this jellied compound to the walls with a soft sponge, working from the bottom up, then wipe it down with a clean chamois. Never attempt to clean spots or soiled patches. Unless you go over the entire surface, streaks and rings are likely to result.

REVIEW OF PROHIBITION INVESTIGATION

A COMPLETE review of the Senate's seven-month Prohibition investigation:

SIXTH MONTH. Dr. McBrood took the stand.

CHAIRMAN—Dr. McBrood, recent magazine polls show the people are in favor of modification and repeal.

M'BROOD—I don't believe what I read in the magazines unless I wrote it myself.

CHAIRMAN—Will Prohibition spread all over the world?

M'BROOD—Yes. England is in favor of Prohibition. The Prince of Wales has yet to fall off a water-wagon.

To save time in arguing, it was conceded the earth is round and near-beer is flat. Dr. McBrood denied that "God Bless Our Home Brew" hung over every rural mantelpiece. He pointed out the benefits of Prohibition. He said the old-time saloons had spacious mirrors, but men now spend their booze money on slot machines to see if their ties are on straight.

The sixth month of the hearing, the Anti-Saloon League had so many star witnesses it decided to play a no-trump hand. Homer Beeswax, a dry Congressman, took the stand.

CHAIRMAN—Mr. Beeswax, isn't it a fact that any Congressman who took a drink would immediately be ostracized?

BEESWAX—Ossified, Mr. Chairman, not ostracized.

CHAIRMAN—Will you please describe the harmful effects of liquor?

BEESWAX—Certainly. Last month in my laboratory I took two guinea pigs. I gave one a shot of gin and he started doing imitations of Charley Chaplin. We had to shoot him for insulting a policeman. The other guinea pig, to whom we gave no liquor, raised a large family, gave them all the luxuries like radio sets and roller skates, and finished with bank deposits of $21,075.15.

The following day the Anti-Saloon League denied that radio announcers were not sober men, but admitted few of them could announce that Tschaikowsky's funeral march would come next. The drys claimed they could reduce flask-toting 50 per cent. if clothiers would quit selling two-pants suits. The wets claimed liquor drinking was increasing. They charged that roadhouses were even springing up on detours.

Hilary K. Jizzick was next sworn as an expert witness.

CHAIRMAN—Mr. Jizzick, how is alcohol split?

JIZZICK—Fifty to the revenue agents, thirty to the Sheriff and twenty to the local cops.

CHAIRMAN—Let me ask you a personal question, Mr. Jizzick. Did you ever spend ten nights in a bar-room?

JIZZICK—No, but I was six days on the Aquitania.

CHAIRMAN—Mr. Jizzick, Dr. Clarence True Wilson says the army and navy could easily stop bootlegging. How long do you think it would take?

JIZZICK—The army and navy forever.

(Mr. Jizzick then stated he had made a mistake of twenty-four hours in his calculation. He said it would take the army and navy forever and a day.)

CHAIRMAN—Mr. Jizzick, what do you think of Billy Sunday's platform—"To hell with booze!"

JIZZICK—That is no place to ship it when you can get such good prices for it here.

John D. Rockefeller was described as an ardent friend of Prohibition. It was shown he raised the price of gasoline 1 cent in his fight against the roadhouses.

The wets played their trump card by calling J. J. Philhook the final week.

CHAIRMAN—Mr. Philhook, what is your name?

PHILHOOK—John Smith and wife.

CHAIRMAN—Are you an avowed wet?

PHILHOOK—Well, no. I use a glass every night to drop my false teeth in.

CHAIRMAN—Isn't it a fact you were drunk on your wedding day?

PHILHOOK—No, but my wife carried quite a few orange blossoms.

A surprise witness, Sidney B. Willeck, said Prohibition worked in Kansas, but took Saturdays and Sundays off.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."
Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

SHOW of SHOWS
by WILLARD KEEFE

Copyright 1929, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"Show of Shows," the Warner Bros. Vitaphone picture was the source for the material on which these stories are based.

SYNOPSIS

Leo Hanlon, broke in Hollywood, meets his old college pal, Harry Cronk. Cronk helps him out with a loan and invites him to a bridge game with Dorothy Troy, his fiancee, and Queenie Quinn, script girl, on the Warner lot. Leo finds the script girl an interesting partner in more ways than one. At the Warner Studio, Queenie introduces him to Larry Ceballos, dance director, for a tryout in the "Show of Shows."

INSTALLMENT THREE

It was the unhappy discovery of Leo that the life of a picture performer isn't strictly a lark. Directly he had sung and danced to the satisfaction of Mr. Ceballos and Mr. Haskell he permitted himself to contemplate a career devoted to breaking feminine hearts and languidly drawing salary checks running into a half a dozen figures. However, he prudently decided that it would take some time to achieve this fascinating estate.

As Cronk had foreseen, Mr. Barrymore was held in somewhat greater esteem about the lot than was Leo. Nevertheless, the beginner was highly satisfied. Such principals as he met in his explorations of the lot were friendly to him and some of the more experienced extras were helpful.

Queenie was an especially valuable counselor. Whatever misgivings she had about Leo's entering the production on what amounted to a bluff vanished when she became convinced that he wasn't wholly without talent. She lunched with him and occasionally attended a picture with him on such evenings as the presence of one of them wasn't required on the lot.

His first assignment was as a member of the bugle and drum corps of the Military Number. This spectacular pageant demanded of its participants far more than mere dancing talent; it required of them a quick adaptability to some intricate military routine, a thorough knowledge of the manual of arms and a steady patience that even Job would have scored no less than ninety out of a possible hundred.

"I'm exhausted," admitted Leo over a table in a tiny restaurant at which he and Queenie dined. "This Jack Haskell knows more routines than the War College. By the time this number is shot I can get any job I want at West Point."

"It's all in the job," Queenie told him.

"Oh, I'm not complaining," Leo hastily assured her. "To me it's fun—wearying, but fun. You know it's a glamorous sight, two hundred girls negotiating those precise military maneuvers. You see, only when the music stops do I feel tired. The snappy military drill music is exhilarating."

Caparisoned in the trim uniform of the bugle and drum corps—a uniform consisting of a white helmet, Sam Browne belt, white trousers, shiny boots and dashing jacket—Leo would have hesitated to exchange roles with Monte Blue, who led the number. Mr. Blue, he fancied, never could feel so sartorially perfect as he, for all his plumes, gold braid and sword.

The number was performed on the steps of a high castle. To Leo it appeared that the cameras, grinding in the midst of what was to him the greatest chaos, never would be able to capture the glamor of the number. Nothing, he suspected, could ever equal the spectacle of two hundred girls, jaunty in their military garments and flashing red, white and blue capes as they performed their rhythmic parade up and down the enormous stairway.

With the completion of the Military Number, Leo was allowed a few days' respite. Both dance directors, with the corps of assistants, were busy on the scenes in which he had no part, so he amused himself watching the filming of other scenes. From Queenie, who had seen the rushes, he learned that the Military Number was strikingly successful, that Bernard McGill, the chief cameraman, had perfectly recorded the natural colors of the spectacle.

"Could you see me?" Leo asked eagerly.

"Naw," interrupted a grip, before Queenie could answer, "that guy Blue stepped in front of you. That's the way with them featured players. They ain't satisfied unless they get seen on the screen."

Queenie rescued him from his embarrassment. "Don't mind the stage hands," she counseled. "They're rough kidders, but they don't mean it. They clown with all beginners. Kid them back and they'll like you for it."

IMMIGRATION PROBLEM TOLD

SACRAMENTO, June 14.—UP—Proposed restriction of Mexican immigration has stirred up a battle between two California factions whose interests are usually common—farmers and labor.

They cannot get together. Labor declares officially that immigration must be restricted, farmers, particularly those in southern California, demanding to know where he would get seasonal help with his truck and fruit crops in such an event.

Efforts to drag the state government into the controversy have been unsuccessful. In fact, no one around the capital wants even to discuss the matter, what with the possibility of offending labor on the one hand and the powerful farm group on the other.

Bill Planned

Under terms of a bill now under consideration by congress, Mexico would be allowed to import approximately 50,000 of its citizens each year.

One state official, who would not allow the use of his name, said he did not believe American labor in California could handle the situation if Mexican importation was curtailed.

"American labor is not suited to much of the work now being done by Mexicans" he said. "The bending and working on their knees in the hot fields would eliminate about 80 per cent of the American workers the first day."

San Jose Bandits Arrested In Texas

WACO, Tex., June 14.—UP—Two men arrested here in connection with a theater robbery in San Jose, Calif., were en route back to that city tonight in custody of Sheriff George W. Lyles. The men, identified as Carl Reese and Ral Hopper, were known to local police under several aliases.

They were arrested here on suspicion and found to be heavily armed and carrying a complete set of burglary tools. Finger print identification linked them with the San Jose crime, officers said. Sheriff Lyles carried indictments charging the two with the hold-up five months ago.

Harriet Fray Asks For Divorce

MARTINEZ, June 14.—Mrs. Harriet V. Fray today filed suit for divorce against Walter Fray, charging cruelty. Mrs. Fray asks restoration of her maiden name Hunt, and $40 a month alimony. She is represented by Attorney T. M. Carlson.

Method Of Ending Pest Problem Seen

and as a result, the affected timbers had to be torn out, according to City Building Inspector A. J. Hurley.

Hurley declares that this is the only instance that termites have caused much damage in Richmond, due to the fact that there are a large number of small black ants in this vicinity which are deadly enemies of the termites.

Hurley has been named on the investigating committee that is to study methods of eradicating the pests.

Habit Told

In his talk, Professor Light said in part:

"Our study has revealed the establishment by the termite of a civilization, which has accomplished much that our own has been unable to do. In the first place, he has tapped a perfectly boundless food supply. His function seems to be to break down the cellulose of plant life and so dead wood is avaliable to him for this purpose wherever he finds it. One variety works in damp wood and another in dry wood.

"His civilization, probably established millions of years before the advent of man, has perfected a scheme for the division of labor that makes ours appear anarchistic. He has complete and perfect socialization established and so in his community exist no anti-social elements. He therefore has no need for courts or school teachers, but he does have an army of soldiers.

"Besides the soldiers, there are the workers who tunnel through the wood or cellulose, eating it as they go. He does not have to take the trouble to digest the food he consumes because he has appropriated a host in his digestive tract made up of single celled organisms busily engaged in assimilating his food for him.

"It is the separate function of the king and queen of the colony to furnish the eggs for the next generation. In order to furnish new colonies in favorable food localities, these kings and queens become conveniently supplied with wings to carry them to new and green pastures."

Brantley is 92, his wife 90. Their eldest son, now 70, claims to be the oldest man in the state whose parents are both living.

White Wolf Killed By Cattleman

STANFORD Mont., June 14.—UP—Just before his instinct to kill cost his life, the famous white wolf of the Little Belt, dined royally on a calf, according to A. E. Close, whose unerring aim ended the career of the snow-white range killer.

Annoyed by snapping of Close's fox terrier and shepherd dogs, the white wolf suddenly whirled from the carcass he was devouring and gave chase. The dogs fled to their master, with the killer close to their heels. When Close saw the wolf, he took aim and fired twice.

His shooting eye was better than a day four years ago, when he only managed to wound the wolf. This time one bullet entered the wolf's head, while the other pierced his neck. The beast dropped dead, ending one of the most notorious animal killing careers in the history of Montana.

TWO KILLED IN COALINGA FIRE

burned but not seriously, when she re-entered the place after first escaping in scanty clothing, to get personal belongings. She was carried out.

A total of 15 business establishments were destroyed by the fire.

Greater damage probably would have resulted except for the lack of wind, which aided the firemen in restricting the flame area.

The fire destroyed one of the most picturesque 'tenderloins" of the Wests' history.

Coalinga's "Whiskey Row" gained world-wide fame among oil workers a score of years ago, when the town was young and boisterous. It was a solid block of buildings, some corrugated iron, some brick and none more than three stories in height.

It was composed of one saloon elbowing another and each topped by a rooming house. In later days. Whiskey Row" had lost something of its vigor and color. The business district had moved away and with its moving achieved respectibility. "Whiskey Row" was still known by its old-time sobriquet, but its former saloons had turned to so-called "soft drink" parlors.

Grain Prices Hit Slump

CHICAGO, June 14.—UP—Faced with the possibility of a 270,000,000 bushel carryover from last year's wheat crop and with the harvesting of the new crop already under way in the southwest, grain prices sagged under heavy selling by large holders today.

July wheat, after falling below the dollar a bushel mark in the morning, rallied and again sank to 99 cents. It then moved upward to close at 99 1-2 cents.

With the exception of last year when the United States produced the largest crop since the war, this was the first time that July wheat had gone under the dollar mark.

All grains on the exchange sold at new low figures for all months, under the general rush to sell and get out from under.

Rye set a new mark at 50 1-2, the lowest since 1904.

Europe produced a bumper crop last year and during the past 12 months has consumed less wheat than normal. These two facts combined to severely lessen the imports with the United States suffering the most.

Planning Group Delays Meeting

The June meeting of the East Bay Regional Plan association has been postponed and the next meeting will be held on August 14, according to announcement by Fred E. Reed of Oakland, president.

Reed said the June meeting will not be held because most of the directors and others interested are away on vacations and it will be difficult to secure interest to justify a meeting until after school opens in Oakland.

He said the fall program of the association contemplates the consideration of many outstanding community problems all of them local in character and affecting in some way or other the entire area from Antioch to San Leandro.

Byrd's Return To Be Placed On Air

Special broadcasting tugs will meet Byrd's shops, the Eleanor Bolling and City of New York, off quarantine, and every detail of his welcome will be described for the radio audience.

FAMOUS RUDY BUYS SELF DESOTO

Rudy Vallee, famous orchestra leader, who is asked to help in many charitable functions, recently bought a De Soto straight eight for rapid transportation through city traffic, according to A. R. Weisgerber, local De Soto dealer.

Often he is provided with a police escort to clear his route along congested streets. Otherwise, his limited time would not permit filling these benefit engagements. Organizations besiege him with requests to lend his entertaining and speaking ability to arouse public support.

Vallee has been called the "world's busiest entertainer." His daily schedule includes playing and singing for records, the radio, on the stage, and at his "Villa Vallee" night club. Of course, there are orchestra rehearsals and arranging scores besides. He still finds time to include in this close daily schedule numerous social and charitable functions.

Until he bought a De Soto, which he drives himself, Vallee frequently found himself left behind by his motorcycle convoy. This resulted in unavoidable delays in meeting his appointments, as his spare time only occurs at hours when metropolitan traffic is at its peak.

In buying his De Soto, a de luxe sedan, with six wire wheels, Vallee was guided by his special need of fast travel through traffic. Clinging to his police escort demands rapid acceleration, easy handling, and instant driver response. He uses the car for all personal driving, and is delighted with his new possession.

In three years since his graduation from Yale in 1927, Vallee has amassed a sizeable fortune from playing, singing, movie contracts, and writing. His income has been estimated at $8500 a week. There is yet no sign of any abatement in his personal popularity, the fate which usually greets flashing stars in the amusement world. Instead, the discovery of his pleasing speaking style has led to even more insistent calls upon his time.
